People Watching

Gallery Institute

1 November 2025 – 31 March 2026

Gallery Institute is proud to present People Watching, a pavilion of the 7th edition of The Wrong Digital Art Biennale.

People Watching features work by over 50 artists, with additional pieces being added throughout the duration of the exhibition. All artworks are created from fragments of portraits found on Unsplash.com, a free stock photography website. The original photographers are credited as the artists of the new fragmented artwork, which are titled and captioned using text found accompanying the original photograph or from text written by the original photographers anywhere else on the internet.

None of the artists are aware of their participation in this exhibition.

People Watching is about observation, privacy, intimacy, trust, artistic intent, curation, the visual language of marketing, and loneliness.

Curated by Josh Sender, Gallery Institute.

Exhibition runs from November 1, 2025, to March 31, 2026 alongside the rest of The Wrong Biennale.

Albert Dera

Man's grey and black shirt, 2017

“I had the privilege of shooting some headshots for a very close friend of mine back in 2015. What makes me most proud about this shoot is that, not only did we shoot these pictures in my house’s hallway, it also landed him many rolls on short films. It even got him his first Acting Agent. Keep it up Cameron! Love you bud.”

User Experience Designer, Content Creator

“I work with Agencies to create experiences driven by a story and rooted in art.

The intersection of technology and human-centered design is where I find greatest inspiration. I’m a digital creative with a background in marketing and a passion for creating compelling content (social media and digital visual assets).

I have worked alongside Fortune 500 companies such as ExxonMobil, to startups like Memebox, creative agencies such as Accenture Interactive and H-Collective.

Today, I work with small businesses as well as big brands on content creation, social media campaigns, and product activations.”
